Tournament of Roses group plans annual Infield Picnic

The Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association has scheduled its annual Infield Picnic at Santa Anita Race Track on Sunday, March 25, with the theme, "Picnic at the Races."

Picnic will indeed be the order of the day, and tables will be provided in the Infield Circle No. 1, with barbecues available for those who wish to cook.

A whole package of fun has been planned by Rosemary Franco, chairwoman, and Sam Falzone, co-chair. These will include a silent auction, a drawing, free tip sheets and the famous "Losers' Pool." Some of the prizes donated for the event include a king-size box spring and mattress, microwave oven, tickets to the Angels and Dodgers ba-ball games, Nutone blender, a gas barbecue and many more.

While parents are busy checking their scratch sheets, children will be entertained with their own silent auction, face painting and an exhibition of "Break Dancing."

Queen Kelley McGuire and her court will greet guests at the annual event.

Tickets will be available at the Chamber of Commerce office through March 23 at $6 for members and $8 for guests and non-members. Children under 18 will be admitted for $1.

Committed members include Eileen Sinner, Sam Falzone, Dick and Rita Closson, Marion Falzone and Don Franco.

The Arcadia Tournament of Roses has set March 25 for their Annual Day at the Races Infeld Family Picnic. This popular event brings out families and friends for a day of fun in the sun.

The group will have exclusive use of circle #1 at the west end of the infield.

There are many activities planned including free tip sheets, the popular loser's pool, a silent auction and many raffle items. A day of fun and games are planned for the children with a special children's silent auction, face painting and an exhibition of break dancing.

until March 23rd. Prices $6 for members, $8 for guests and non-members $1 for children under 18.

All proceeds go to the Arcadia Rose Float. Chairing the event are Rosemary Franco and Sam Falzone.

Souvenirs of the picnic will be king mattress and box springs, microwave oven, Angel and Dodger tickets, Nutone blender, gas barbecue and many more.

Close to 400 Arcadia families attended the annual Tournament of Roses Association's annual Infeld Picnic at Santa Anita Race Track on Sunday. Not only did the weather cooperate at the fund-raiser — it was sunny, warm and — but all sorts of prizes — including a new car — but all sorts of prizes — were arranged by the committee for young and old alike.

Queen Kelley McGuire and her Royal Court, including princesses Erica Greathouse, Anita Kempf and Lorlene Krajan, attired in jockey silks and caps, greeted picknickers. They also sold tickets

Under the direction of Rosemary Franco and Sam Falzone, co-chairs, the activities included a silent auction, drawings for donated prizes, a Breast Dance exhibition, free tip sheets, the famous Losers Pool and of course, the racing.

Children were entertained by volunteer face painters, and also had a drawing of their own, plus prizes for guessing the most pennies in an Easter Egg, the best jelly beans in a jar and more.

The "Best Decorated Picnic Table" award went to none other than Terri designed by Phillipa Tompkins, with Marilyn Phelan coming in second.

Incidentally, the Phelan's son, Shane, celebrated his birthday Sunday with a cake, along with Rick Hatchen.

Committee members included Eileen Sinner, Carol Falzone, Mike Allison, Dick and Rita Closson, Marion Travisano and Don Franco.

Funds raised from the event will go toward Arcadia's entry in the 1985 Rose Parade.

Ruth Gilb honored at surprise party

Ruth Gilb was honored by her family with a surprise party Saturday evening prior to receiving the "Woman of the Year" award from the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce at its Installation Banquet at the new Granada Royale Hotel on Thursday.

Charles Gilb had sent word to take his mother, Mrs. Polycena Valadon, and his sister, Josephine Collins, in Montana so they could be present for the happy occasion. The trio greeted guests at the door. The Gilbs' three children, Valerie, Michael and Denise, also were present.

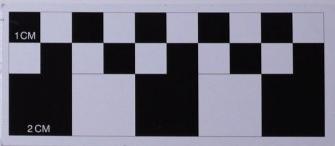

A large crowd of civic, social and political friends attended the surprise Gilb's redecoration of her home, which was one of those chosen for the 1983 Holiday Homes Tour to benefit Arcadia Methodist Hospital.

Because he had to attend another function, County Supervisor Pete Schabarum sent his deputy, Sarah Flores, to the Gilb's to present a certificate of appreciation and a gift for the woman who has served the city and the county. Also in attendance were State Sen. Newton Russell and his wife, Diane, and Assemblyman Richard Mountjoy and his wife, Earline, along with Arcadia Mayor and Mrs. Dennis Lojeski and city council members, past and present.

By CATHERINE MUNDY

HONOREE — Ruth Gilb will long remember Saturday, April 14 as one of the most important days in her life. Not only because she was a recipient of the Chamber of Commerce "Citizen of the Year Award," but because her mother and sister arrived that day from Montana and Idaho, and because husband Charles gave a fantastic cocktail party for the 160 guests who had come before going on to the Grande Royale Hotel for the Chamber of Commerce dinner and ceremony.

Ruth had just recently returned from an enjoyable cruise to the Caribbean and South America accompanied by her daughter, Denise. Ruth's mother, Pollicena Valadon, doesn't like to fly so Charles sent a limousine to Montana to pick her up and stopped again in Idaho to pick up Ruth's sister, Josephine Collins.

The beautiful, spacious Gilb home was a perfect setting for the cocktail party with plenty of room for the 160 guests to mingle on the upper and lower levels. Everyone congratulated Ruth on her honor, and Charles on his recent election to the Arcadia City Council. Hors d'oeuvres were served and a live voice ensemble entertained throughout the party with lovely music.

More than 400 people attended the dinner and awards ceremony at the hotel, and Kel Mason, executive vice president of the chamber, and his staff did their usual splendid job of planning a perfect evening. Jim Helms was master of ceremonies and an emcee for our own special night so well received and I am not going to repeat, but I can't let it pass without talking about it. Lyle Cunningham and myself, last year's honorees, were so happy to be able to present the awards to Ruth and Jim Parker, and it was a time for us to remember "our" special night.

Kel escorted me to the podium to present the trophy which I received on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce to Ruth. Besides my friendship for Ruth I have a deep admiration for her dedicated services to the community. Her lasting contributions and leadership have meant and will continue to mean a great deal for Arcadia. Lyle presented the award to Jim Parker, another dedicated worker for the community. Jim is president of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses this year, the first woman to hold that position. She has many exciting things planned for the year.

There was so much said about her activities and her awards that I won't repeat them, but in talking to Ruth one day about her background I became interested. Her father was a very young man when he came to Montana from Portugal, where he had been a shepherd and had driven a covered wagon in the hills. He soon bought land and went into business for himself, retiring when he was 35 when he moved into town and invested in real estate. He traveled around the world and in the Azores he met Ruth's mother, who was born there. Ruth attended Catholic schools until she went to Northern Montana for a year, later transferring to the University of Idaho majoring in English and drama. That is where she met her husband, Charles, who was just out of the Marines. Ruth tells a story that amuses me (hope it does Charles). They were ambitious and didn't want to ask their families for help, so Charles went out and rented a tractor to cut the fraternity and sorority lawns. According to Ruth, he kept mowing and she cut the lawn. They married in California in 1949 and to Arcadia in 1958, where they built their home on Singwood Drive. Both Charles and Ruth play an active role in community affairs.

Past presidents are feted by Tournament of Roses

Past presidents of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association were honored Sunday at a well-attended reception at the home of Richard Hoertig in Arcadia. Arriving members and guests were greeted by Ruth Gilb, 1984-85 president.

The colorfully decorated garden was transformed into a Arcadians to the Olympics-themed event, where decorations carried out the U.S.A. team's red, white and blue colors. Small tables with red, white and blue decorations, were set up on the tennis court for past presidents and their guests, while Tournament members and friends gathered in the garden below.

A large band of horn d'oeuvres was provided by Alexander's Brass Rib the Royal Turtle, Chez Sateau, David Copperfield's, The Embers, Peppercorn, Moon Palace and the Sawmill.

Arcadia Tournament of Roses Queen Kelly McGuire and princesses Anita Kempf, Andrea Martinet, Erica Greathouse and Lorene Krajan circled through the garden area, dressed in the traditional national colors.

One of the highlights of the afternoon was the presentation of a color rendering of Arcadia's 1984 Rose Parade float, given to Craig Lucas, '83-84 Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association president, and Fred Johnson, vice president of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association. He and his wife, Barbara, were special guests at the reception, along with Phil Marrone of Arcadia, Pasadena Tournament of Roses float selection commit-

A special feature was the performance of the Flairs Gymnastic Foundation team from Pasadena. The girls, ranging in age from eight to 14, had just attended the State Gymnastics meet, arising from the floor in second place. Their coach, Vicki Backhouse had just been named State Champion. Doug Boger, head coach, led them through a series of gymnastic feats on the mats, from tumbling to "no-hands" twists, flips and more, receiving delighted applause from the audience. Several team members are from Arcadia. According to Boger, Flairs has won state and four S. C. titles. He will be an assistant coach for the U.S. Gymnastics Team for the Summer Olympics. The afternoon concluded with awarding of door and drawing prizes.

Past presidents in attendance included Vern Hubbard (1971), James Clarke (1972), Randy Stike (1973), Edward Ryan (1974), Phil Scott (1975), Fred Johnson (1976), John Johnson representing the late Richard John (1977), Richard Closson (1978), Ray Rogers (1979), Ed Sonders (1980), Chris McGuire (1981), Don Franco (1982), and Craig Lucas (1983), and their wives.

Jean and Pery Cope co-chaired the event, assisted by Bob and Ann Benson, Beth Constanza, John Gregory, Colette John, Monty Lindsey, Harriet McComas, Art and Della Mason, Don and Gina Pellegrino, Gordon Penharlow and Dorothy Petree.

The Granada Royale Hotel was the location chosen for the first Arcadia Rose Court Alumnae brunch. "A Salute to the Rose Court" was the theme, and the 1984 Queen, Kelly McGuire, and her court were each introduced and honored. Ruth Gilb, Arcadia's Tournament of Roses president, expressed her enthusiasm for the future growth of the alumnae association and reported on coming Tournament of Roses events, including a preview of the 1985 Rose Parade float.

Past Rose Court members in attendance at the brunch were Laura Cowan and Janie Worsley (1982), Susan Smith and Becky Denny (1981), Sharon Broth (1979), Janice (Anderson) Ballard, Nancy Cawr and Michelle (Lowe) Featherhoff (1978), Connie Garelli (1971), Eileen (Wallone) Palmer and Lynn (Whorley) Melvey (1970), and Cynthia (Clark) Cruz (1961). All said they were excited about participating in coming events with both the alumnae association and the Tournament of Roses Association.

The Arcadia Rose Court Alumnae Association is a group formed seven months ago by Nancy Larew, and any former Rose Court member from 1961 to the present is invited to join. The group presently has 21 members, and since November has been involved in many Tournament activities including the 1984 Rose Parade Float Participation Day, the Coronation Ball and the Family Day at the Races.

Plans are being made for future participation in the Rose Court selection pageant and coronation, and for a Mother/Daughter Fashion Show and luncheon in the Spring of 1985.

Past court members interested in joining the association may write for information to Arcadia Rose Court Alumnae, 174 N. Lowell Ave., Glendale, CA 91740.

Mixer draws close to 600 to benefit Rose Float fund

Highlight of the evening was the unveiling of a rendering of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association's 1985 Rose Parade float. A Currier and Ives Holiday design, the float is titled "The Parade of the Roses." The theme of the float is "The Art of the Tournament of Roses Parade is in The Style of the 1920s." Notable participants in the float were Queen of Foothills Inter-City Newspapers, Louis Nunzio, and the entire Rose Parade Committee.

Close to 600 Arcadians and guests attended the Wineshed Mixer Monday evening in the crisp, air-conditioned Infield at Santa Anita Race Track. "Ruth's Red Rose - A Nightclub," carried out by committee members dressed in period clothing and featuring a live band, featured a fashion show, refreshments and a silent auction.

Notable guests included Queen of Foothills Inter-City Newspapers, Louis Nunzio, and the entire Rose Parade Committee.

Notably among them was "Scarface" Fred Lindsay, "Godfather" Charles Gilb, "Mobster" Larry McComas and "Gambler" Scott Gandy.

Tables were covered with red material and draped in front with black cloth, and on each table was a single red rosebud. There were red roses everywhere and the 1930 Buick in front of the club was loaned by Trilce Explorer Boy Scouts who had a fine job of parking cars. The hors d'oeuvres were served to the ladies about with table after table, each with its own specialty, and all contributed by local restaurants.

Ruth Gilb was in a black crepe dress with fringe, a rhinestone headband, pearl choker and a long strand of pearls. A feathered jacket completed her costume. Harriet wore a black crepe cocktail dress with a shocking pink bow, and if prizes had been given I feel sure that Bea Rowland would have received one. She wore a long purple dress of the '20's era, with fringe, purple handbag, gold shoes, a double strand of pearls and a feathered garter.

The committee was all in costumes: Valerie McComas, Monty and Fred Lindsey, Scott and Freddie Gentry, Valerie Gilb, Sharon Culverwell, Bud and Shannon Ferguson, Bob and Mickey Harbor, Leonard and Marilyn Churchman and Janet Lojeski. The cigarette girls in black net stockings and leotards were Bev Margett, Martha Birmingham, Delta Burnett and Jeannine Hatch-

A WINNER — The Arcadia Tournament of Roses departed from tradition in staging the annual Wineshed Mixer this year, and it turned out to be one of the most colorful and fun parties to be given in our town. The theme this year was "Ruth's Red Rose Night Club," and Harriet McComas and Jerry Vashchitchian, co-chairmen, with visions of Moulin Rouge in Paris, came up with the idea of the Moulin Rouge Night Club and Tournament President Ruth Gilb thought it was a marvelous idea.

"I'm elated," said Vicki Condit, new member of the 1984-1985 Miss Arcadia Court. "I've never felt this way before."

Hugs and murmured congratulations abounded as Miss Condit, Doreen Bohn, Colleen Hanrahan, Tammi Herron and Martha Torres were surrounded by family and friends after they were named to the Arcadia Court Thursday night.

"This was my last year to try to get on the court," said Miss Herron. "I was going to be too old next year." She is 19 and a sophomore at Pasadena City College.

Asked how she was going to celebrate the honor, Miss Hanrahan replied, "I'm going home to study for my botany test."

The finalists had each been judged on poise, appearance and creative ability as they responded to a question put to them by master of ceremonies Art Hershey.

Miss Hanrahan had been asked what her favorite subject was in school. She had said that she liked botany best because that was really into plants. "That was the answer on which I won," she said.

Asked where she would like to vacation, Miss Bohn said that she had a special interest in Scotland because she has been Scottish Highland Dancing for years.

Miss Torres also enjoys dancing as well as participating as a member of the Arcadia High School drill team. She was a member of the Olympic drill team and performed in the opening ceremonies.

Her career goal is to be an attorney and she expects her experience on the court to allow her to learn more about public relations.

Miss Condit also is interested in public relations. "I think being on the court would help give me some exposure to the field of public relations. I would really like to represent the city of Arcadia."

Miss Condit, Miss Hanrahan and Miss Torres are all seniors at Arcadia High School and Miss Bohn is a junior. The 1985 pageant winners were crowned by members of the 1983-1984 Court.

Erica Greathouse, Anita Kempt, Lorene Krajin, Andrea Martinet and retiring Queen Kelly McGuire each shared her thoughts about the past year on the Arcadia Royal Court with the audience which filled the Arcadia Masonic Temple auditorium. They felt that it had been a maturing experience and that The Court members have grown to be close friends.

Miss Martinet credited her year on the Arcadia Court with helping to develop the poise which the Tournament of Roses Queen and Court Committee recognized as she was selected as a member of the 1985 Rose Court.

The Miss Arcadia Pageant presented by the Arcadia Jaycees was an elegant one.

Following a musical prelude by the Arcadia High School Pep Band, Hershey introduced the contestants. Each young woman walked down the ramp, made a turn and then took her place on the bleachers.

While the judges were completing their scoring, the Chanteurs from Arcadia High School performed several musical numbers. They set the tone for the evening. The six couples were elegantly dressed in pink foot-length formals and attractive gray tuxes with black trousers.

Only the numbers of the 25 semi-finalists were announced as they formed two lines amid cheers and encouraging calls from the crowd.

During the intermission, contestants munched on cookies as they mingled with the audience and waited for the final results.

After the names of the five who comprise the 1984-1985 Arcadia Court of Roses Court were announced, cameras flashed and then the young women were whisked off for a meeting with their adviser, Martha Birmingham.

On Friday, they began their busy lives as members of the Court by being fitted for their play outfits at The May Co.

The judges will announce which of the five will be Queen of the Court at the Coronation Ball on Saturday, Dec. 1.

"A Currier and Ives Holiday" — is the name of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association's entry into the 96th Rose Parade to be held on Jan. 1, 1985, in Pasadena. Above is an artist's conception of what the finished Arcadia float will look like.

The title of the float is in keeping with the theme of the upcoming Tournament of Roses which is "Spirit of America." Arcadians, whose city is a longtime Rose Parade participant, found out what next year's entry will look like during the official unveil-

Coronation Ball set for Saturday

By KIM BALDRIDGE
Special Correspondent

Excitement is mounting in Arcadia as the evening of the "Silver Bell" Coronation Ball approaches.

As they make their purchases of new dresses, hats, shoes and rent elegant black tuxedos, hundreds of Arcadians have been wondering which of the 1985 Tournament of Roses princesses will be selected to reign over the Court.

The announcement of the queen's identity will be made at the Arcadia Turf Club at 8 p.m. this Saturday.

No one is more curious than the five Arcadia princesses themselves. "We think about it constantly," said Princess Vicki Condit. "We can't help it. We talk about it all the time."

Each of the young ladies insists that she will be pleased no matter who is crowned Miss Arcadia, but the one who actually gets the honor will be the most happy.

Doreen Bohm, Colleen Hanchan, Sarah Herron, Martha Torres and Miss Condit all say they feel honored to have been selected to represent the city of Arcadia and they look forward to riding the Currier and Ives float in the Rose Parade, but there is still some honor to be decided Saturday night.

Having donned her beautiful white ballgown and sequined slippers, each princess will be accompanied to the coronation ceremony by her parents and her handsome young Prince Charming.

In the Concours Room at the Turf Club, the current Arcadia Tournament of Roses Queen Kelly McGuire and her princesses, Vicki Condit, Anita Kempf, Lorene Krajan and Andrea Martinet, will be presented for the last time as they promenade around the room with their fathers.

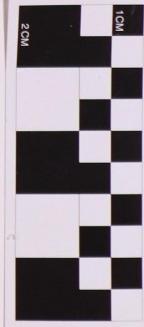

Then the new Court will be spotlighted as they take their places on the platform. They will be joined by their formally attired escorts at the top of the stairs.

The audience and the five princesses will wait in anticipation as the scorekeeper hands the envelope to Mrs. Charles Gilb, president of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association.

The queen will then be named, crowned and caped. She also will be presented with a perpetual rose pendant and given keys to the Buick which she may use during the year.

Special music will be played in the main banquet room afterwards as the queen and her court glide across the floor first with their fathers and then with their escorts.

After the ball is over, there will be one more major event for the queen and her court, the ride on Arcadia's float in the Tournament of Roses on New Year's Day.

'Silver Bell' is theme for Coronation Ball

The Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association will kick off the holiday season with the "Silver Bell" Coronation Ball on Saturday, Dec. 1, in the Clubhouse at Santa Anita Race Track.

The gala evening will begin at 7 p.m. with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres, followed at 8 p.m. by the coronation ceremony. Tournament members and guests will be welcomed by Ruth Gilb, president.

One of the five princesses selected to ride on Arcadia's 1985 float, "A Currier and Ives Holiday," in the Pasadena Rose Parade will be selected as queen, and her name will be announced by Art Hershey, master of ceremonies, who is director of personnel and public relations for the Santa Anita Golf Club. The 1984 Queen, Keili McGuire, and her princesses Erica Greathouse, Anita Kempf, Lorene Krajian and Andrea Martinet, will complete their year of representing the City of Arcadia, and will be introduced at the ball. Queen-to-be will relinquish her crown to one of the five 1985 princesses, Doreen Bohn, Vicki Condit, Coleen Hanrhan, Tammi Herron and Martha Torres, who will be presented to the audience with their parents and escorts.

A sit-down dinner will be served after the coronation, followed by dancing to the music of the Home Savings of America Band, featuring Dick Emmons, provided by Home Savings of America.

Mony Lindsey and Dick Thinger are co-chairmen of the event, assisted by Harriet McComas and Freddie Lindsey-Gentry, decorations; Jean Cope and Bardella Mason, reservations; Patty Blum and Ann Dale, fashions, along with other committee members Fred Lindsey, Patty Thinger, Mike Blum, Marilyn Churchman, Bill Dale, Shannon and Buddy Ferguson, Scott Gentry, Valerie Gilb, Larry McComas, Rick and Sandy McGrath, Art Mason and Valerie Palfrey.

"Residents of the Realm," as they were described, English and Spanish, gathered around Art Hershey, gathered more than 300 strong Saturday night in the clubhouse at Santa Anita Race Track for the official crowning of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association's 1985 queen, Martha Torres. The women were in gathering gowns and the men in blazers to attire for the opening of the holiday social season in Arcadia.

The clubhouse, decked with greenery, red bows and twinkling lighted Christmas trees, was the site for the coronation ceremony, opened by the track bugler as a prelude to the event's climax, the naming of the queen. Hershey introduced each member of the 1984 court, who entered escorted by her father, John E. McGuire, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. Art Mason, and Princesses Erica Greathouse with Hugh Greathouse, Anita Kempf and Harry Kempf, with her uncle,

"Residents of the Realm," as they were described, English style, by Master of Ceremonies Art Hershey gathered at the Arcadia Saturday night in the clubhouse at Santa Anita Race Track for the official crowning of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association's 1985 queen, Martha Torres. The women were in glittering gowns and formal attire, some in attire for the opening of the 1984 social season in Arcadia.

The clubhouse, decked with greenery, red bows and twinkling lighted Christmas trees, was the site for the coronation ceremony, opened by the track bugler at 8 p.m. with the evening's climax, the naming of the queen. Hershey introduced each member of the 1984 court, who entered escorted by her father: Queen Kelly McGuire with Chris McGuire; and Princesses Eric and Vicki Condit, James and Hugh Gresham; Anita Kempf and Harry Kempt; Lorone Krajian with her uncle, James Alexjian, and Andrea Martinet with Paul Martinet. They then waited on the staircase with their escorts, Scott Jefferson, Larry Davis, Greg Harding, Terry Magliascio and Ken Fox.

The 1984 Royal Court received gifts from members of the Association and the city, including certificates of appreciation, pendants from Goldsmith and Sons, a peacock pendant designed by Orozco Jewelers for Queen Kelly, and a portrait from J. Carleton Roberts, all presented by Monty Linscott, chairman of the coronation ball co-chairwoman.

At the sound of the bugler's call, the 1985 court then was presented: Doreen Bohn with her father, Edward Bohn, Vicki Condit with Ralph Condit; James Hanrahan with Colleen Hanrahan; Jack Herron with Tammy Herron; and Cassie Torres with Martha Torres. The white-gowned young women were then given over to their escorts, Jim Rattigan, Gregg Alan Whitesell, John Kearney, John Lenhart and Alfredo Cacho-Sousa.

Excitement mounted as Ruth

Gibb, president of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association, received the red envelope containing the name of the new queen. The envelope had just broke out as she called bracelet Martha Torres forward, to receive her crown and robe from 1984 Queen Kelly McGuire, along with a sheaf of red and white roses.

Following her promenade around the clubhouse, the new queen received the traditional ruby pendant from Goldsmith and Sons and the use of a new Buick until Jan. 1 from Becherer Buick, all presented by Dick Thinger, ball co-chairman.

The two courts and their escorts, along with tournament members, then moved to the adjoining room, where tables, centered by bowls of white roses and pine greenery, were waiting for diners. At each place, white bags tied with silver ribbon contained gifts for the women guests. The menu was prepared by Don Williams of Santa Anita, featuring shrimp salad with

Louis dressing, breasts of chicken in sherry sauce with mushrooms, rice and green beans, and a rich four-layer chocolate cake.

Music for dinner and dancing was provided by Dick Emmons Band, courtesy of Home Savings of America, arranged by Bardella Mason. Margie Gibson and Bob Graham were vocalists with the band.

During the intermission, 1984 Queen Kelly McGuire and her court came to the podium to introduce their "Den Mother," Beverly Margaret. After expressing their "heartfelt thanks and appreciation for all their care and support," Mrs. Margaret with a large box, which contained a handcrafted stained glass rose in a beveled glass setting, created especially for her.

Marta Bermingham has been serving as liaison chairwoman for the 1985 Royal Court.

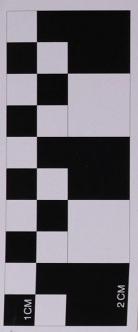

Fred Lindsey then announced a special dance for the Royal Court and their fathers, soon joined by other dancers. The young women then danced with their escorts for the evening.

The committee responsible for the ball, headed by Monty Linscott and Dick Thinger, included Mike Allison, Patty and Mike Blum, Jean and Perry Cope, Ann and Bill Dale, Shannon and Buddy Ferguson, Freddie and Sue Gentry, Ruth and Valerie Gilb, Fred and Lindsey Hirsch, Larry McCollum, Sandy and Rick McGrath, Della and Art Mason, Valerie Palfrey, Bob and Fran Sheppard, Patti Thinger and Fran Zonver.

City of Arcadia - "A Currier & Ives Holiday"

The City of Arcadia unfolds pages from the past to reflect on America's simpler and more traditional times, showing the delights of a mid-winter sleighride as portrayed by the famous Currier & Ives lithographs. Stepping gingerly through fresh fallen snowdrifts and patches of lunaria ice, melted snow glistens on the coat of a 16 foot tall bat-tailed grey. Drawn by this magnificent steed, a beautiful hand-tooled sleigh transports the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Queen and her

Court. A lovely quilt patterned with roses, carnations, marigolds, calendulas, and dendrobium protects the girls from the brisk morning air. Peering from beneath a fallen log, a fox intently surveys the erratic scratchings of sparrows searching for food under the snow. In Currier & Ives tradition, patches of blue, red and magenta accent the scene. Designed & Built by Jubilee Floats.

Miss Torres receives crown during gala Coronation Ball

It's Queen Martha.

Martha Torres was crowned Saturday night as queen of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Royal Court at a glittering Coronation Ball at Santa Anita Turf Club.

The identity of the new queen was revealed by Ruth Gilb, president of the Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association, after Scorekeeper Arne Kalm handed her an envelope containing the information, kept secret until that moment.

Before that, Miss Torres was one of five lovely Arcadia young women who are members of this year's Royal Court. Shortly afterward, she was officially crowned and robed.

Princesses serving with her are Doreen Bohn, Colleen Hanrahan, Tammi Herron, and Vikki Condit.

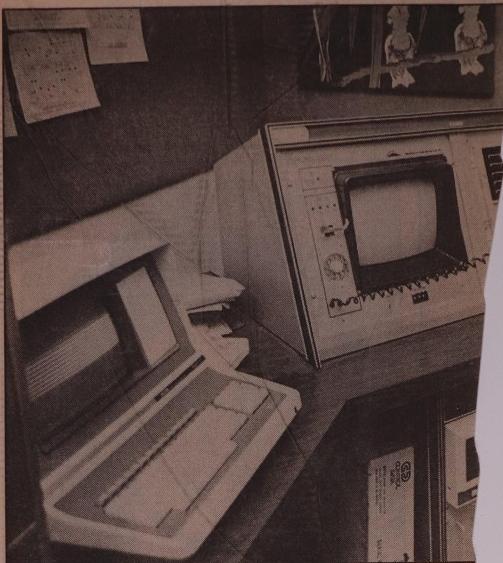

A panel of out-of-town judges selected the queen and court on a point system, but even the judges did not know until Saturday night which one was to be the queen. Kalm, as the scorekeeper, was the only one who knew which one had scored the most points until the announcement was made.

The new queen came to Arcadia from Denver only 2½ years ago, but quickly became active at Arcadia High School, where she is on the drill team.

Born in Peru, she still has many family members in South America and hopes that they will be able to come here to watch her ride with the other members of the Royal Court on Arcadia's Currier and Ives float in the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena on New Year's Day.

She plans to attend Pasadena City College and hopes to become an attorney.

A complete story on the ball and additional photos will appear in the Arcadia Tribune on Thursday.

Color Sliders elect

The Arcadia Color Sliders is a club of more than 60 amateur competitive photographers which has met in Arcadia for 31 years. It is a member of the Southern California Council of Camera Clubs and the Photographic Society of America. The purposes of the club are to learn, practice and enjoy the techniques and art of photography, and to share in group activities.

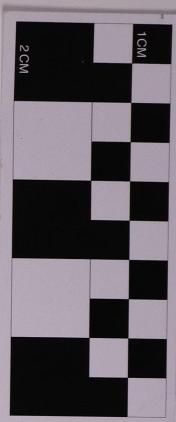

Besides the Awards Banquet at the end of the club year in November, a potluck picnic, a Christmas party, and several field trips are a regular part of the club's activities. Members receive a monthly newsletter with details of events and competition results.

Many members combine other hobbies of gardening, darkroom processes, flower arranging, nature study, and especially, travel with the taking of slides. Subject matter varies from extreme close-ups of chemical crystals or the head of a flower to scenic views of mountains. Competitions are held on the fourth Mondays of November, January, March, May, July and September. Two slides are submitted by each member at each competition and professional outside judges give constructive critiques. Ribbons are awarded based on a point system.

Seventy-seven attended this year's November banquet. With outgoing president Stewart Johnston presiding, the following officers were installed for 1984-85: Betty Jean Guthaus, president; Bill Brooks, vice president and membership; Warren Shaw, treasurer; Lois Sharkey, secretary; Gilbert Sinclair, president-elect; Leroy Peterson, editor; plus a large slate of appointees who will help carry on the activities of the club.

T. of R. guests preview Arcadia float

The Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association invited members of the board of directors and guests to a special preview party at the Azusa Pavilion, where Arcadia's float was being decorated, on Saturday night. Also invited as special guests were Queen Martha Torres and Princesses Darlene Bohn, Vicki Condit, Colleen Hanrahan and Tammi Herron, along with Martha Bermingham, their liaison chairwoman.

Guests were welcomed by Ruth Gilb, Tournament president, and her husband, Charles, while visitors were served hot chili or albondigas (meatball) soup, both very hot and welcome on that chilly night.

Chuck Janac of Jubilee Floats, the Arcadia float designer, was on hand supervising the float decorating, as students helped trace glue and flowers, seeds and branches on the "Carrier and Ives Holiday" float with its dappled grey horse and sleigh. According to Mrs. Gilb, the students were "A tremendous help, making this an all-Arcadia production."

ARCADIA TOURNAMENT OF ROSES HOLDS CORONATION BALL

Queen Amy and Court sparkle

The Arcadia Tournament of Roses held its 18th annual Coronation Ball last Sunday, the highlight of which was the crowning of Amy Susan Futcher as Arcadia's Rose Queen.

Members of Amy's court include Marci Lynn Richmond, Patricia Lynn Meyer, Rachael Ann Schoeman and Susan La Verne White.

The Coronation was held at the Pasadena Hilton Hotel, with Jack Saelid acting as Master of Ceremonies, and the Dick Emmons Orchestra providing musical entertainment for the evening.

Donald Franco, president of the Arcadia Tournament, welcomed the guests, and the Reverend Robert Walsh gave the invocation.

Laura Ann Cowan, last year's queen, received a standing ovation from the crowd when she was introduced. Laura crowned the new Queen Amy, and also placed the queen's cape around her shoulders.

Amy Fuchter to reign as queen

Before a crowd of more than 600, Arcadia High School senior Amy Susan Fuchter was named Queen of the annual Arcadia Tournament of Roses Association's Coronation Ball Sunday night in the International Ballroom of the Pasadena Hilton Hotel.

Although the suspense was drawn out a little more than usual (the ceremonies ran late because the ballroom's previous party ran overtime), Tournament president Don Franco and Master of Ceremonies Jack Saelid kept things moving at a brisk rate.

Tables were set with bowls of sugar-coated pineapples, lime sherbet, orange juice, Chianti, beer and mirrored glasses. The 1982 and '83 courts were introduced and entered through a flower-decked ring, to the applause of the audience.

After introductions, the 10 contestants, including past Tournament Rose president Thornton H. Hamlin Jr. and Mrs. Hamlin, princesses of the 1982 court were presented on the arms of their fathers. They were Lisa Bonner, Barbara Hale, Marlene Hanahan and Jana Lynn Worsley. Each princess was presented with a certificate by Franco.

The 1983 court then appeared, each one pronouncing on her father's arm, and mothers were escorted by the girls' dates. Amy Susan Fuchter with her father, John; Patricia Lynn Meyer with John Meyer; Karen Ann Shoeman with Arnie Schoolman; Marcie Lynn Richmond with Gary Richmond; and Susan LaVerne White with Robert White. Gowns for the court were of white taffeta with a multi-colored sash, a neck accented with a wide rufflet, long puffed sleeves, a V waist and a deep ruffle at the hem.

The 1982 queen, Laura Cowan, was then introduced with her father, Jack Cowan. "I am honored to stand here and thank everyone," said. "All these memories will never be forgotten." Queen Laura was given a gold peacock pendant donated by Orozco Jewelers by Franco, and her portrait was presented to the mother of the new queen.

Excitement grew as the moment of the selection of the queen drew near. Franco opened the envelope and as he read Amy Fuchter's name, applause came from the court and the audience.

She was crowned by Laura Cowan and received her robe and bouquet of red roses, along with keys for a new Buick to drive until Jan. 1.

From Phil Scott of Becherer Buick.

Prizes included a $145 diamond and gold pendant from Goldsmith and Sons Jewelers, and the queen a perpetual gold rose pendant.

ART WALK — The gardens of Arline and Bob Fry were the setting for an art walk on a recent sunny afternoon. The Frys invited a large number of their friends for cocktails and hors d'oeuvres and the feature of the afternoon was a display of paintings by two artists, Ruth Bauer Bill of La Canada does florals and landscapes, south and west coast artist William Smith of Newport Beach presents oil paintings of fishing boats on very still water, and scenes of the Balboa Pavilion area of Newport Harbor.

A Mexican theme was selected by the Frys and carried out in the colorful decorations on the patio and in the many and varied foods offered. At the refreshment area Margaritas were featured, served by bartenders in sombreros, ponchos and Bob had his famous art parties over the past 15 years, at intervals of four years. Each time they invite two artists whose works are entirely different from each other.

In addition to the art walk, the Frys' children were present. Robert Jr. and his wife, Susan, came from Irvine and brought their eight-week-old daughter, Jennifer, who was very much the center of attention as she was held by her great-grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Saylin Arline's mother, Cindy. Cindy, who now resides there, having moved from Palm Springs for the event, and Eric Fry, a senior at UCLA, came from Santa Monica to participate in the festivities. ***

ANNIVERSARY — Freda and Jim Rostron celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary recently with an open house at their home in the Rancho area. The happy affair was given by their two daughters and their husbands, Lorrie and Franz Schwarm, and Gerrie and Hugh Afshari and the 70 guests. The Rostrons' son, Jim, and his wife, Cindy, prepared all the food and the buffet table was an elegant sight. The Rostrons' four grandchildren, John and Melody Afshari and Sarah and Carrie Schwarm, all helped serve except three-year-old Carrie.

The Rostrons were married in Westminster Presbyterian Church in 1957. They have been in the same house in the Rancho for the past 32 years. Both daughters, who now reside in San Diego, attended Arcadia schools.

FIRST ANNUAL — Kel Mason and the staff of the Arcadia Chamber of Commerce are still taking bows for the chamber's successful Holiday Preview staged in the Paddock Room of Santa Anita. And the preview, organized by Kel and his wife, Bob, has become a tradition. Art parties over the past 15 years, at intervals of four years. Each time the elaborate buffet was beautifully done and a the food was delicious, as only Don Williams catering can make it. Tony Pope was also on hand. Merchants displayed fabulous pieces with drawings every half hour. Five gowns won the gifts and the valuable necklace donated by Orozco Jewelers was won by Diane Sims of Arcadia.

A wizard told fortunes, a robot was much in evidence as well as other entertainment. There were 70 booths filled with crafts, antiques and free legal services. The preview continued on Saturday and Sunday and several thousand people attended.

Marguerite Towsey and chairwoman of the Invitational Preview and she was assisted by Marilynn George and Mary Fran Andreccig, with Phillips Tomkins doing the invitations. ***

OAKS AFFAIR — Bingo and Game Bonelli were hosts for the annual golf social of Santa Anita Oaks homeowners Association at their home on Rancho Road. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres were served to attending homeowners which included Mayor Pro Tem Dick Lojekis and his wife, Jean, and members of the newly installed board including the president, Thurston LeVay.

HONORED — Seven friends and co-workers gathered for supper at the Peppermill in Pasadena recently to honor Doris Cocking as she retires after 15 years as manager of the Arcadia Unified School District. Doris, who is known for her sense of the right, expressed her delight in being the center of attention but urged brevity on the speakers. Sam Orini, head of special events, was a masterful emcee of the ceremonies. Nancy Gilligan, school psychologist, received several humorous greetings in which Doris figured prominently. Kathie McNicholas, also a psychologist, and a talented calligrapher, presented gifts with a personal message from many friends. Dr. John Nelson, assistant superintendent of Arcadia schools, represented the district and bestowed the official retirement plaque on Doris. Sam gave Doris a gift of luggage from her assembled friends.

At Doris' table included her son, Jim Cocking, and his fiancee, Regina Pardus. Party chairwomen were Libby Wilson and Nancy Gronroos. Libby's son, Gary Wilson, took marvelous pictures of the party. ***

WORKOUT BREAKFAST — The famous Clydesdale horses will be shown at the annual workout breakfast of the Tournament of Roses on Saturday at Santa Anita. Ann Nader, chairwoman for the event, says come and bring the entire family. A continental breakfast will be catered by Don Williams.

TODAY IN PASADENA — Joan Cope returned from the midwest in time to chair the successful fashion luncheon of the Arcadians given at Brookside Clubhouse. Damon's of San Marino provided the fashions, parades and prizes. Betty Amato, Jeanne Milano, Jane Rothenfeld, Joann Wright and Mary Jo Dougherty modeling Carol Jo Parry, accompanied by Eleanor Parcell, were a selected group of Christmas carols. Table favors were donated by Mrs. McCoys. The Comedians by Ernest Borgnine, Merle Norman, Peacock Prints and Faschings car wash.

Various merchants and the Huntingdon Bank donated the proceeds will be used for Arcadian philanthropies. Mickey Harbur, president, welcomed the guests. One of the prizes was abstract in black walnut done by Hal Shepherd and this was won by Jane Coopers.
